Transition Group

Freebrough Academy recognises that secondary transition is a process of change in which some young people may not be equipped with the social, emotional and academic skills to make a smooth transition to secondary school at the end of Year 6. They may require substantial preparation, planning, adjustment and additional support. The Transition Group aims to support students with additional or complex needs that arise from learning or social and emotional difficulties. The Transition Group provides the necessary adjustment period and support system needed for a key group of students who have been assessed as not yet secondary ready. The Transition Group follows a primary school model of curriculum, delivered by a primary trained teacher. Key skills of mathematics and literacy are delivered through project based learning as well as discrete lessons.

The students identified for the Transition Group are in addition to those placed in the Platinum Group which is specifically designed to provide further support for students with specific SEND needs.
